LinkedIn and Udemy Content Integration

OnPoint continues to add direct API integrations with third party content providers as customers seek to expand their use of curated learning materials from both general and industry/market-specific sources.

The most recent additions include support for the popular LinkedIn Learning catalog with more than 250,000 available learning objects as well as support for Udemy, a leading MOOC platform offering structured learning paths for a wide array of hard and soft skills.

Customer L&D teams can identify, curate and support a broad range of external content; the OnPoint LMS then automates the process of generating learning nugget objects for each unique content item – whether it be for the entire catalog or just specific catalog selections. Users can launch to the associated content in LinkedIn or Udemy and the integration returns completion detail.

This handshake allows external content items to be included directly in OnPoint catalogs and categories, as well as skill profiles and curricula, allowing users to be assigned content and receive credit for all completions. There is also full

Other available API connectors to third-party content libraries include Skillsoft and Lynda.com with several others under development. Third-party API Connectors are $1,000 each, including setup.
